

Does Love Fail Us

Does Love fail us or do we fail love
Do we dishonor all that it means whenever we feel the need to blame
Do we hold it near our hearts and cherish it like a newborn babe?

Does love fail us or do we fail love
Can we recognize our lack of commitment to honor and obey love's call
Do we sit down and tell it our worst fear and greatest dream
Do we take love for granted, discarding it like worn out shoes?
When we think we've had enough

Does love fail us or do we fail love
Do we expect it to always make our hearts race and passion flow
Do we want it to constantly feed our ego?
And when we feel it isn't giving us what we desire-
Do we raise our hands in despair and cry out, love beware?

Does love fail us or do we fail love
Do we throw temper tantrums when we think love has deceived us and left our hearts in pain?
And, do we call it names and blame it for our mistakes

Love tries to tell us it's always there even if we aren't aware
Love tries to show us there never needs to be a fight- even when we think it's right
Love is always ready to help us find compassion in our hearts
Love is always there to shed it's light on our blinded vision
Love is always seeking ways to show us how to love
This love is unconditional, all forgiving, you and leaves nothing to chance
So if we can truly open up our hearts without fear or judgment
Maybe we can allow this love in to find it's home
So does love fail us or do we fail love?

©Joy Parris